

CHAPTER 5
Consultation and Coordination
(SDEIS)

PUBLIC AND AGENCY INVOLVEMENT

Public input and feedback is a key element of the environmental impact statement process. Public and agency review of this draft document for Biscayne National Park help ensure that relevant issues and alternatives are adequately considered and evaluated and that all pertinent implications of the alternatives have been analyzed. The purpose of this section is to describe the agency and public comments received during the initial scoping process, and those from comments on the preliminary management prescriptions and alternatives. The comments and agency responses allow interested parties (including the National Park Service) to review and assess how other agencies, organizations, and individuals view the park and have responded to the different alternatives.

The 2011 Draft GMP/EIS fully described the publication participation process on pages 285–292, including these topics:

- Public meetings and newsletters
- Consultation with Other Agencies/ Officials and Organizations
 - U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration – Fisheries
 - Coastal Zone Management
 - National Historic Preservation Act, Section 106 Consultation
 - American Indian Tribes
 - Miami-Dade Historic Preservation
 - Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission
- Agencies, Organizations, and Individuals who received a copy of the 2011 Draft GMP/EIS

Copies of our consultation letters for the above topics are included in appendix D.

The National Park Service conducted public scoping meetings and workshops (in 2001, 2003, and 2009) and held three public meetings on the 2011 Draft GMP/EIS. During the public comment period in 2011, more than 300 people attended public meetings. The majority (17,597) of comments supported an alternative that contained a marine reserve zone, with 294 comments in opposition.

On September 14, 2011, the National Park Service received a letter from the Florida Department of State, Division of Historical Resources (SHPO) that stated the 2011 Draft GMP/EIS adequately addresses cultural resources located within Biscayne National Park. A copy of the SHPO consultation letter is included in appendix D.

In January 2012, the National Park Service received a letter from the Florida Department of Environmental Protection, including a letter from the Florida Fish and Wildlife and Conservation Commission, raising a number of significant concerns about the NPS preferred alternative (see appendix G). In particular, the Florida Department of Environmental Protection and Florida Fish and Wildlife and Conservation Commission identified a number of Florida statutes and policies of Florida's Coastal Management Program as the basis for their objections to the General Management Plan under the Coastal Zone Management Act. The State of Florida stated certain management actions and zones proposed in the General Management Plan, notably the marine reserve zone, are inconsistent with enforceable policies included in Florida Coastal Zone Management Program absent changes to the preferred alternative. In addition, the commission felt there were inconsistencies with the 2007 Memorandum of Understanding between Florida Fish and Wildlife and Conservation Commission and the park. The position of the State of Florida was that any consideration of a marine reserve zone could only occur after measurable management objectives have been clearly defined and less restrictive management measures have been appropriately implemented and evaluated in close coordination with Florida Fish and Wildlife and Conservation Commission and stakeholders. The National Park Service maintains that the 2011 Draft GMP/EIS is consistent with the Coastal Zone Management Act and the memorandum of understanding.

In light of the concerns raised by the State of Florida and a number of other stakeholders, the National Park Service undertook an evaluative process to consider a number of management actions that could be deployed to achieve its objective of a diversified visitor use experience. All proposals were evaluated for protection of natural and cultural resources in the park. The National Park Service examined a wide range of management strategies that include varying degrees of access for the diversity of visitor experiences. A number of additional meetings were held with federal and state authorities to discuss these proposals.

On September 19, 2012, the National Park Service received the biological opinion from the NOAA Fisheries that included section 7 determinations on the species that were listed at the time of the 2011 Draft GMP/EIS release. The cover letter is included in appendix D.

The National Park Service did not receive any official comments from any tribes on the 2011 Draft GMP/EIS.

For this SDEIS, the park will continue to consult with appropriate agencies and tribes to address the Endangered Species Act, section 7, and the National Historic Preservation Act, section 106 concerns as described on pages 287–290 of the 2011 Draft GMP/EIS.
